Every mom has been there. A spark lights up behind your child's eyes and a seemingly random question comes out. Perhaps you're in the car riding along and your toddler strikes up a conversation that makes you laugh until you cry or your heart overflow with joy. We reached out to local Katy moms to find out what the word on the playground is.

"When asked what he wanted to eat, my 3-year-old son asked for 'chicken nuts' from Chick-fil-A."

- Kelley McElroy

"My 4-year-old asked me if they had TVs when I was young. I told her mommy is 35 not 105. She replied, 'Oh, because I know over 20 is old, so I thought you didn't have TV.' I didn't know whether to choke or hug her."

- Meli Sanchez

"My son asked me for a goodnight kiss. After I gave him one, he says to me, 'What's that on your mouth?' I said 'I don't know. What is it?' Then he says, 'A smile.' So cute."

- Catherine Mckinley

"My 4-year-old son asked me once, 'Where can we buy Astroboy shoes?' When I told him I didn't know, he replied, 'Well, maybe we should ask God. He knows everything, right?'"

- Katyna Reyes

"My grandson said to me, 'Nana, watch. I can do 10 hiccups!' He hit the ground and started doing push-ups, I could not stop laughing!"

- Susan Maher

"My husband and I have custody of a great niece and great nephew. When she was 4 and he was 2, I was reading while they were playing a few feet from me, when I heard Owen start crying. I looked up and before I could say anything my niece asks, 'You didn't see me bite him, did you?' I couldn't help but laugh."

- Terry Nichols

"My daughter told me, 'Mommy, I know when babies will be born. The mom and dad get a water bottle, and when it breaks, they know the baby is coming.'"

- Carolina Robayo

"Driving down Mason Rd. with my son, who was 4 at the time, he suddenly screams out with excitement, 'I just saw Jesus! I just saw Jesus!' I looked to my right and on the side of the road is a man dressed in a Statue of Liberty costume wearing a spiked crown. It made me laugh, and warmed my heart at the same time."

- Flora Rogers

"My 3-year-old asked for a baby sister instead of a baby brother. I asked him why not a brother? He replied, 'I may not like him!'"

- Renate Jo-York

"On our way home from gymnastics one day, my 4-year-old and I saw a crop duster spraying the fields across from the church. When we got home he ran into the house so excited to tell his dad that we had seen a 'dust buster!'"

- Jamie Wagner

"My 3-year-old asked me, 'Where's daddy?' I told him that daddy had to go to work and that he was in the ocean. He pondered that a minute and responded, 'Well, daddy needs to wear his goggles!'"

- Meagan Clanahan

"My 6-year-old son Case asked us, 'Why does the tooth fairy want to pay me for my funky, old tooth?' Good question."

- Bonnie Cerny
